Abbitt and Tuck Recommend Local Option

Set Goal of 1 Million Seedlings For County in Forest Program

The basis for a sound economy for Appomattox County is dependent upon each acre of land producing a crop that will bring a financial return to the landowner. Too often in the operation of farm lands the woodland is neglected or not included in the overall management plan.

Suppose one considers the following facts about Appomattox County. The total land area in Appomattox County is 219,520 acres, of which 150,460 acres are in some type of forest growth. Less than 20% of the forest area is well stocked, 40% is fairly well stocked, while 40% is poorly stocked. The present forest stand conditions are the direct result of improper management. Clear cutting of all the merchantable material from both the mature and immature stands has resulted in only 12% of the forested area now remaining in merchantable material.

Suppose one now considers a typical Appomattox County farm. It is estimated that 29% is in cropland, 27% in pasture, and 44 in woods, on the average size farm. Statistics indicate that 16 acres are in need of reforestation. A further study shows that 45% of our saw timber and 55% of our pulpwood is cut each year from our farm woodlots.

In 1954, Appomattox County stood in 28th place among the 54 Virginia counties producing over 5,000 cords of pulpwood. Actual production was 18,668 standard (128 ft.) cords. With an estimated stumpage price of $4.00 per cord, the total stumpage value would be $74,672.00.

After considering the above facts, it is evident that each land owner should carefully inspect his farm to determine those acres that need to be planted.

BOX SCORE ON TREE SEEDLINGS

Goal for planting of tree seedlings in Appomattox County: ONE MILLION.

Number ordered to date: 20,000.

See the County Agent, Soil Conservation Office, Vocational Agriculture Instructor, or Virginia Forest Service for information on ordering seedlings.

Pine Timber Being Depleted In County

Many can remember 15 to 20 years ago when pine timber for saw logs and pulp wood seemed to be in abundance. Not so today. The heavy demand during the war and since for lumber, and the ever-increasing demand for more and more pulp wood has greatly depleted this important resource in this county. On an average over the state, (and this county is no exception) pine timber has been depleted 20% faster than it is being produced. This means loss of jobs for Appomattox County people. It means loss of income to woodland owners.

Landowners are urged to look over their farm for places to plant pine on abandoned land and on cut over land. When you have decided how many acres you can replant this year place your order for seedlings. See the county agent, soil conservation staff, vocational agriculture instructor, or the Virginia Forest Service for details on ordering seedlings.

'Old Glory' Flies At New School

Impressive services were held Wednesday morning at the Elementary School here, at which time Old Glory was raised by Howlette Hunter and LeRoy Williamson. Chest X-Ray Clinics Now In Progress

Success or lack of it for chest x-ray clinics such as those now in progress in Appomattox County can make the difference whether or not tuberculosis is to be finally eliminated.

Such is the opinion of Dr. H. E. Jenkins, District Health Director, who today urged everyone 15 years of age and over, to avail themselves of the opportunity of a free x-ray during the remaining days of the Mass X-Ray clinic in Appomattox. He also wishes to reemphasize the fact that there will not be another mass x-ray clinic for two years in Appomattox County.

Following is the schedule for the remaining clinics:

Thursday, October 27, at the Lee Theater, Appomattox, 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

Friday, October 28, Oakville, at Oakville School, 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

Monday, October 31, Pamplin, at N. & W. Masonic Hall, 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

"While the disease is being pushed lower as a cause of tragedy and death, we cannot overlook the fact that there are over 15,000 cases under supervision in Virginia," Dr. Jenkins said.

"It is estimated there are some 500,000 cases of active T. B. in the United States, half of which have yet to be diagnosed," he reports. It is also the leading cause of death in the 15 to 35 age group, he pointed out, adding that nearly 20,000 persons die of the disease yearly.

One hundred per cent participation by all our people whenever the opportunity is available—for everyone should be x-rayed periodically —is the greatest weapon we have.

5-9 Age Group To Get Free Polio Shots

The free polio vaccine program in Virginia will commence shortly after November 1, when the vaccine will be distributed throughout the state, according to Dr. H. E. Jenkins, the Health Director of Appomattox County. This program is separate from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in that the vaccine is supplied by the Federal Government.

The first age group to receive the vaccine will be 5 to 9 years, both years inclusive. When it is possible to secure more vaccine at a later date, other children will receive it.

The distribution of the vaccine in Virginia has been delegated to the State Health Department. The Health Department's vaccine will be all that any Virginians will get for a while, outside the polio foundation program, because the department is buying all vaccine allocated to Virginia.

None will go into commercial channels until it becomes more plentiful, or the state runs out of Federal-grant money.

Local Health Departments will have full responsibility for carrying out the inoculations, except that the Federal Government has stipulated that no one may be charged for the vaccine itself.

The vaccine will be distributed free through clinics or through private physicians. In the case of a private physician giving the shots, however, persons will be charged for the doctor's services, but will not be charged for the vaccine itself, according to the statement of the Health Director.

When final plans have been made for administering this vaccine, the times and places for the clinics will be given.

Miss Gregory will be installed as class president this week at Old Student - New Student ceremonies at the college.

Attending State Teachers Meet.

Appomattox public schools will be closed tomorrow, Friday, in order that members of the faculties may attend the Virginia Education Association and Virginia Teachers Association conventions being held in Richmond.

Mrs. K. C. Gregory and Mrs. H. A. Gurney are official delegates to the V. E. A. meeting. Supt. J. A. Burke, Miss Flora Williams and a number of other faculty and staff members will attend the sessions.

"The survival of public schools in every county and city of Virginia is dependent upon the support of the people of each such community of their schools." Thus wrote Congressman Watkins M. Abbitt and Congressman William M. Tuck in a letter sent Friday to State Senator Garland Gray, chairman of the School Study Commission of Virginia.

The Commission is planning to present a report, possibly by the middle of November, at which time Governor Thomas Stanley will decide the question of calling a special session of the legislature to act on the report.

"Without the affirmative support of a majority of the people in any county or city, it is obvious that adequate taxes will not be levied and financial resources will not be available to operate the public schools of that city or county. More important and essential to effective maintenance of the public schools in any community is the confidence, affection, moral support and good will of the patrons and public generally," the letter continued.

"Being conscious of these essentials to the preservation of effective public education in Virginia, it is apparent that a program of legislation which permits integregation in the schools of any county or city of this Commonwealth, against the will and the convictions of the majority of the people of such county or city must result in the destruction of its public schools.

Against Forcing

"Furthermore, a matter which affects so intimately every child, family and home in Virginia, should not be imposed upon the people of any county or city until the people of that county or city have first had the opportunity to express their approval or disapproval thereof in a referendum election called for that purpose.

"We believe it to be in the interest of the people of Virginia, both white and Negro, to continue the operation of their schools upon a segregated basis rather than to jeopardize the continuance of public education under a program which will result in the ions of our public schools in many parts of the State by virtue of the revulsion of the people to the forced integration thereof and against their will.

"For these reasons and what we believe is the best interest of all of the people of Virginia, we urge that laws be enacted which will make the public financial support of integrated public schools dependent upon the will of the people of each county or city wherein integration of the races in schools may take place.

"We submit that such a program is not repugnant to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States; is eminently in accord with the Democratic processes and with the fundamental rights of our people, and that it holds out the best hope for the preservation of an effective public school system in this Commonwealth . . . . ."

The joint letter of Congressman Abbitt of the Fourth District, and Congressman Tuck of the Fifth District, is the first public suggestion of a plan to be made by Virginia Congressmen. Both have been close to the problem, as their districts lie in areas where the heaviest Negro population is concentrated.

Moses Asks Big Nov. Vote

An appeal for a sizeable vote in the Nov. 8 General Election for the unopposed Democratic nominees has been made here by State Senator Chas. T. Moses. He asks that Appomattox maintain its tradition of turning out a large number of votes.

Senator Moses and J. B. Boatwright head the ticket, as nominees for the State Senate and the House of Delegates respectively.

Nominees for the county offices are: George Abbitt Jr. for Commonwealth Attorney; J. Carroll Plunkett, for Treasurer, David T. Robertson for Sheriff, and J. M. O'Brien for Commissioner of the Revenue. Unopposed nominees for Supervisor are: F. L. Murphy, in Southside; O. W. Martin, Jr., in Stonewall, and Richard Webb in Clover Hill. Voters will also name three unopposed justices of the peace.
